SATURDAY 17th OCTOBER 2015

CONFERENCE FEE: £10

TEACHING SKILLS FOR SUCCESS IN HISTORY

School of Education, University of Birmingham, Edgbaston, Birmingham, B15 2TT

What can we do to make teaching and learning as successful as possible? Our next conference focuses on developing historical skills through a wide range of contexts, resources and approaches to enhance the opportunities for success in our classroom.

We are delighted that our Forum will be led by two speakers who can meet this challenge. Ben Walsh is a history textbook writer and Vice President of the Historical Association and David Sheldon is Head of Learning Programmes at the British Museum. We would like to acknowledge support provided by the History Teacher Educator Network. The Forum will provide a range of exciting workshops or discussion groups as well as our usual publisher/educational provider exhibition.
