Using the Narrative to Find the Bigger Story

If your curriculum involves a trip to one of the Historic Royal Palaces, if you are planning a visit, or if you would simply like to know more about the hidden depths of these great historic venues, then these events are for you. The events at Kensington and Hampton Court Palaces will give you the opportunity to find out about what your students would learn from a trip to these majestic buildings. It will also give you a chance to learn more about their hidden depths and the opportunity to hear from leading speakers. If you would like to enable your students to delve beneath the façade of these impressive buildings, to discover the hidden stories that each can tell, the myths that the evidence can bust or you are interested in how stories can be used in History to capture your audience, then look no further and book your free place/s today.

The programme of events follows below. For full workshop details and to book your place, please go to www.history.org.uk/resources/secondary\_news\_827.html and follow the bookings link, making sure that you indicate your preferred workshop options in order of preference, 1 being your preferred choice and 3 being the workshop you would least like to attend.
